Dining

Børsen Spiseri

Svinøya Rorbuer is home to one of the most renowned restaurants in the Lofoten Islands. Børsen Spiseri is housed in an old quay dating back to 1828, and significant efforts have been made to preserve its original character. Most of the period elements have been retained here as well, creating an atmosphere infused with the scent of tar and rigging. Meat and fish-based dishes are offered. The menu changes with the seasons and the availability of ingredients.

L. Bergs Sønner has its fishing facility just 50 meters from our restaurant. This provides a significant advantage in terms of access to fresh fish, and the chefs can select the finest catch. Few restaurants can boast of having their own fishing facility.

When serving dishes like lutefisk, stockfish, dried fish, or fresh cod, it is with pride that they inform you that the fish is delivered by the fisherman, processed, treated with lye, or hung on the shelves and served - here at Svinøya.

Krambua

On the same quay, you'll find Krambua, which is a small museum in itself. It houses old products and equipment from yesteryears, taking you a hundred years back in time! Feel free to enjoy an aperitif here before your meal or try our Fiskeværs meal, which includes a guided walk through the fishing village.
