Description

Fiskå and Vanylven have been the center of a thriving fishing community for centuries. Owner/host Webjørn, like his father before him, began his working life as a fisherman on the fjord, and this lodge is a monument to their rich local heritage.

From the mainsail strung up in the entryway, to the family's antique seaman's chest, to the elegant brass telescope by the window, it's clear that The Fisherman is our flagship lodge. It's the largest of the three, decorated in blue and silver coastal shades to give the impression of drifting gently on the open water.

This lodge creates a slice of Argentina on the fjords, with its spicy rhythmic décor, bullhide bedspreads, and hand-picked treasures such as the authentic goucho belt and knife on the windowsill. On the terrace stands a traditional Parilla grill, selected and imported by Webjørn himself, ready to be fired up for an asado barbeque, Argentinian style.

When he was slain in battle, Kong Ring was buried on a nearby hilltop which now bears his name. This lodge is also named in his honor and decorated in a Viking style with a circular chandelier over the rustic dining table. There's a lacquered mead horn and a bronze Thor statuette, as well as a traditional Norse open-fire grill on the terrace; the perfect setting for some old-world Viking feasting of your own.
